"WAR DEPARTMENT,
BUREAU OF REFUGEES, FREEDMEN,

WASHINGTON, May 15, 1897.]
"I have information from Virginia and South Carolina that intemperance among the freedmen is on the increase. Already a movement is on foot in this city, having in view a thorough organization, so as to enable the colored people to exert all the power possible to prevent the evil in question.

"I find that 'the Sons of Temperance' in their grand divisions retain the old bigorry and decline to extend their order to save men of dark skins from drunkenness, except it be done upon condition that there shall be complete and enforced separation.

"I therefore hope that officers and agents of this Bureau, and the agents of the different benevolent associations working for the elevation of the colored people, will take immediate measures to organize an association of colored people, were excluding the whites, under the name of 'The Lincoln Temperance Society.' There is great appropriatenesss in the name, from the well-known character of Mr. Lincoln and and the love the Freedmen bear him. "Please to see to it that the officers or agents of this Bureau who may be intemperate men, be immediately reported to this office.

"Very respectfully, your ob't, servant, "G. O. Howard,"

New York Newspaper Gossip.

Hard times are telling severely on the newspaper business. All the publishers are cutting down expenses. They say, as the merchants do, that if they can make both ends meet until better times come, they will be satisfied. Retrenchment in the Herald establishment has gone to the extent of discharging eight or ten reporters. There has been a reduction of force on the Tribing eight or ten reporters. There has been a reduction of force on the Tribune, also, and, to some extent on all the other duilies. The Journal of Commerce, which has a steady circulation and advertising patronage, is about the soundest, financially, of all the morning papers. The weeklies, with the exception of the Ledger, Weekly, Mercury and Independent, are rather behind in their cash accounts. Beecher's story in the Ledger improves as it progresses, but it is not a success. The New York Weekly and the Sunday Mercury, two of the trashiest papers published here, are remarkable instances of what liberal advertising can do. The former has a circulation of nearly 100,000, and its proprietors, who were poor men ten years ago, are now quite wealthy. The Independent is still flourishing, but as it has been repudiated by the Congregationalists, its demise some day won't be surprising. It is a dull time in the newspaper circle, and some of the ephemeral concerns are likely togo down before long. But the established papers can, with economy, weather the storm, and go on all right when better times come.

THE Rothchilds are intensely political, as are most English Jews; in fact, it is conceded in London that the English Jews are the most intellectual and accomplished men of the country. Their contest for political equality has been one of the noblest episo English constitutional history, and the struggle was headed by the Rothchilds. It is a remarkable circumstance, that all the women of the Rothchild family now in London should be distinguished for capacity and accomplishments. Baroness Lionell, for instance, is known to have a knowledge of the personel and detail of English and European politices, second perhaps, to that of no other woman in Europe, and at one time to have written the history of the Aberdeen Cabinet for her private entertainment. Lady de Rothchild is known to read every book that a politician can read, and spend her life in adding to her cultivation, while Baroness Mayer Rothchild, the wife of the third brother, is well known for her quickness, ability and talents. These details, familiar to London, are less known perhaps in America, but they will explain much of the thy-play of politics, and light un dispunsated. childs. It is a remarkable circum of politics, and light up dircumstances which might not otherwise be understood. they will explain much of the by-play

New interest is just now being developed in the properties of air. Air in motion has always been made avail. able in the propulsion of ships. It has long been thought that the tremendous power of air, as illustrated in hurricanes when its velocity is sometimes over one hundred miles an hour, and its pressure forty-six pounds to the square inch, could be utilized. Recent investigations and experiments are likely to elemonstrate that its elasticity will be demonstrate that its elasticity will be made available as a most effective means of safe and speedy communication. The method employed is the motion of a column of air confined in a tunnel. In the plan of an American inventor, Mr. Needham, the tunnel is arranged in the form of an irregular elilpse. A powerful sir-pump, placed in the circumference, exhausis the sir in one arm, while that in the other pashes the car forward. The car is thus placed in a continuous circuit of air and may be propelled at almost any degree of rapidity. It is estimated that by means of such a railway around the city of New York, passengers could be transported from the Battery to the Central Park in about four minutes.
